

Having learned to causally infer accurately backwards and forwards through time, then to the logical conclusion of any answerable verbal question, it may seem useful to utilize this gift of “scrying” to unlock the original intended meanings of religious and spiritual mysteries and sacred documents.

For instance, one could take a freely published Freemasonic or Rosicrucian initiation, or Buddhist teaching, and in an almost identical manner to when scrying the answer to questions, induce a trance and causally infer the original intended meanings in the original language and dialect of the document.

With practice, - perhaps permit a friend to write up a brief esoteric teaching with three secret hidden meanings, then have another friend without being told the secrets translate the teaching into a simpler English dialect, then attempt to translate the paper one’s self - , it becomes possible to obtain a clear 99% or higher probability as to the original intended meanings of “the Book” (of Islam Christianity and Judaism), Mahayana Buddhism, and any branch of Gnosticism.
