

To scry in the manner I depict is to time travel through logic and to “prophecy” the answer to any question. Before learning to scry the solutions to problems, it is first necessary to learn how to prophecy.

Exercise For Learning Prophecy

Two friends, one an astral traveler, come together. The astral traveler leaves his body and hovers inside the brain of the second friend. The astral traveler extracts all fear from the mind of friend two.

Friend two tries to prophecy the future.

Astral friend continues extracting all fear while programming into friend two an identification of success.

If prophecy results, the experiment is considered spot on. If not, congratulations on having or knowing someone with the ability to astral travel.

If Learning Prophecy is Difficult...

It may not be enough to be fearless. My best guess as to how prophecy works concerns entering a creative, non impulsive, heightened retentional state of mind, through meditation and whatever helps with meditation. Visualize without questioning (without fear, as before, with help if necessary) your imagination merging with the present moment, grasping on to a huge chunk of the present, then trace a causal inference of the present moment carried to its inevitable conclusion in the future.

Once Prophecy is Learned

Two friends, same as before. Astral friend extracts all fear, friend two tries to scry the answer to the question via the method that induced 100% accurate prophecy, astral friend continues extracting all fear and programming in an identification of success.

Questions

What is the fairest possible we two friends can do, and how?

What loyalty based issues is the elite system stuck on that we can help them with without betraying our hearts? How?